

Save Energy, Save Money

Tools, strategies and resources for facilities energy management

A Garfield New Energy Communities Initiative workshop

Wednesday, January 14, 2009

9:00 a.m. to Noon

Garfield County Administration Building, 101 8th Street, Glenwood Springs

1. Welcome and introductions

2. Statewide goals and vision for improving energy use in commercial and public buildings

Joani Matranga, Western Area Field Representative, Governors Energy Office

John Canfield, President, Trident Energy Services, Inc.

3. Elements of success for achieving maximum energy savings: Case study of JC Penney Co.

EPA Energy Star Partner of the Year for 2007 and 2008

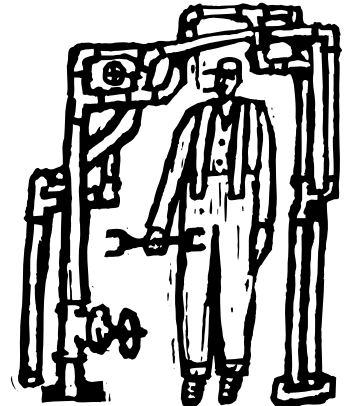

Rob Keller, Energy Management and Engineering Services Director for JC Penney Co.

Learn how JC Penney used the EPA's Energy Star program to save $4.5 million a year in energy costs, along with installing rooftop renewable energy systems. Learn how the Energy Star approach can be used at the local level.

4. Governor's Energy Office programs and technical services for facilities energy management

John Canfield, President, Trident Energy Services, Inc.

- State energy tracking software: EnergyCAP
- Performance contracting
- Technical assistance for self-financed efficiency upgrades
- Renewables in performance contracting
- Utility resources (Holy Cross Energy, Xcel Energy)
- School applications
- Technical assistance for high performance new buildings
- Q and A

5. Next Steps: Discussion

John Canfield, Joani Matranga and G-NECI advisory board

- Review of current status of G-NECI partners efforts: where are the partners on continuum of getting energy audits, making efficiency improvements and tracking energy savings?
- Steps needed to turn audits into efficiency upgrades
- Using EnergyCAP to quantify energy benchmarks and measure progress
- Setting energy efficiency targets to reach by end of 2009

1:00 – 3:00 p.m., same location

Official meeting of the Garfield County New Energy Communities Initiative Advisory Board.